Licensor and/or the Managed Service Provider if such infringement or misappropriation could have been avoided by use of the New Release; or (iii) unlicensed activities by the End User; or (iv) failure to Use the Software in accordance with the terms of this Agreement. Further, the Managed Service Provider shall have no obligation under clause 10.1 for a claim that could have been avoided if the End User had not used the Software or the Licensed Materials in combination or conjunction with any software, data or systems not provided by the Licensor or stipulated in the Documentation.

10.1.5. The Managed Service Provider will not indemnify End User for any infringement claim based on: (i) a patent that End User was aware of prior to the effective date of this Agreement; or (ii) the End User's actions prior to the effective date of this Agreement.

10.1.6. If an infringement or misappropriation of the intellectual property rights of a third party by the Software in accordance with clause 10.1 above is alleged or, in the reasonable opinion of the Managed Service Provider, an infringement or misappropriation of the intellectual property rights of a third party is likely to occur or be alleged, the Managed Service Provider may, at its discretion –

10.1.6.1. procure for the End User the continued right to Use the Software at no additional cost to the End User; or Rather, processing of End User Data will take place only in exceptional circumstances as an incidental effect of the Managed Service Provider and/or the Licensor's performance of its contractual duties. To the extent the Managed Service Provider and/or the Licensor do process Data of the End User, such processing shall maintain safeguards for protection of End User Data. Those safeguards will prevent access, use, modification and disclosure of End User Data (i) as compelled by law or (ii) as the End User expressly permits in writing. 17.4.1.5. Any refund is conditional on the End User complying with all post termination obligations, set out in clause 17.3, and on the End User being up to date on undisputed amounts due.

18. Licensing Model

18.1. Bare Metal Servers vs. Virtualised Environments

18.1.1. Where the Software is deployed directly on a physical ("bare metal") server, the Licensed Level shall be calculated based on the total number of physical processor cores in that server.

18.1.2. Where the Software is deployed in a virtualised environment, the Licensed Level shall be calculated based only on the number of virtual processor cores (vCPUs) allocated to the virtual machine running the database, regardless of the total number of physical cores in the host server.

18.2. Licensing Enforcement

- 18.2.1. The Software is not technically locked to prevent the End User from exceeding the Licensed Level. It does not bind to system identifiers such as IP address, hostname, or core count.
- 18.2.2. The licensing model is declarative: the End User is responsible for ensuring that the number of cores in use remains within the Licensed Level at all times.
- 18.2.3. The End User may modify the system architecture (for example, by adding vCPUs or migrating to a different server), provided they ensure that the number of cores in use remains within the Licensed Level at all times, even if such changes do not cause the Software to stop functioning.

For clarity, by way of example:

If the Software is installed on a physical server with 12 processor cores, the Licensed Level is based on all 12 cores, even if the Software uses only part of them. If the Software is installed in a virtual machine with 6 vCPUs allocated from a physical host with 12 cores, the Licensed Level is based on the 6 allocated vCPUs. If the End User later increases the allocation to 8 vCPUs, the Software will continue to operate, but such use may exceed the Licensed Level and result in additional licensing fees under clause 7 of this Agreement.
